Job Description:
Great opportunity to learn a lot about food safety and quality management as well as providing a great start to a career in the food industry.

The right candidate must be good at written communication. Candidates also should be critical thinkers and able to assist interpreting chemical specifications, regulation, and other standards. Preferably candidates will have had exposure to the food industry and food safety regulation either through coursework or experience. For example, coursework in Food Laws, Chemistry, and Microbiology would be particularly helpful. The sanitation assistant position would generally work a night shift. Desired candidate can communicate both in English and Spanish.
Please have those interested, submit a letter describing their interests and relevant background or experiences that would make them a suitable candidate. Also, please have them include an estimate of when they may be available to begin working with us. No resumes needed at this time.
