Good Morning,

Motlow begins the Spring term with the addition of some new offerings in the Hybrid format. Please take a moment to read the information below to assist you in determining if a Hybrid course is a good option for you.

What is a Hybrid Course?

A hybrid course combines traditional face-to-face classroom instruction with online computer-based learning. A significant portion of the course's activities are completed online and time traditionally spent in the classroom is reduced, but not eliminated. Motlow Hybrid courses combine the best of two worlds, engaging students in the active, autonomous learning process of an Internet-based online course, while also providing regularly scheduled interaction with the course instructor.

Our hybrid courses are not self-paced. Assignments and due dates will be detailed in the syllabus, and explained during the first meeting of the class. Students are responsible for knowing all course deadlines and submitting assignments on time to keep up with the class.

What are the advantages of taking Hybrid Courses?

Hybrid courses offer a number of advantages over face-to-face teaching and online-only courses. Students enjoy the convenience of scheduling courses to better fit their busy lives, and benefit from the self-directed learning activities, advancing their critical-thinking skills.

Hybrid courses are not without challenges, however. Students must accept greater responsibility for their personal learning than in traditional classes since a portion of the course work will occur out of class. Some expect that fewer on campus class meetings means less work and may find the self-motivation and time management difficult. We encourage you to contact the class instructor if you would like additional information about a specific class.
